

Yoshiaki Nakagawa (Shiga University)

“Statistical properties of transaction networks among bank accounts”

Abstracts:

Using the transaction information between the deposit accounts in a local bank, we constructed a network by defining accounts as nodes, transactions as links, and transaction amounts as link weights. In this presentation, we show the result of analyzing the community structure of this network.